

FIRE SAFETY COORDINATOR TRAINING

INTRODUCTION

Fire can have devastating effects to businesses and can result in fatalities. Without proper planning and coordination, any organisation's emergency procedures are likely to fail. This course has been designed to provide fire coordination skills to nominated members of staff in organisations.

Statistics produced by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister show that the UK Fire and Rescue Services attend over 500,000 fires each year. The number of fire related deaths reported each year exceeds 600, with the number of fire related injuries exceeding 16,000. The financial loss to the UK economy is measured in billions of pounds.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This course is for all nominated employees with responsibility for coordinating emergency plans in the event of a fire.
